

Due largely to the amount of time it was taking I stopped doing my own lrf issues some time ago. The results from getting for 3-4 years both on my own web site and on Net Weather were pretty encouraging. At 10 days out about 70+% and by 20 days over 60%.

As an alternative to all this work I had been looking at the Met Office outlooks for 6-15 days and 16-30 days. In my view they are as good as any available and well worth checking for an overall picture of what the weather may do in those time scales. The links are below

This is the main Met office forecast site, it may change before long as their 'beta' site is almost ready to incorporate all their forecast listings-I will try and remember when it happens to change the link.

Currently if you want the further outlook then the 6-15 and the 16-30 day outlooks, simply click on the appropriate heading.
